

fmta funds ocap

Below is something from the FMTA message board.

This is something that has been developing in the past couple of years. The same radical groups that gather in Ontario Coalition Against Poverty and who keep trying to get control over student radios and student unions, are also in some sort of symbiotic relation with FMTA.

We are getting increasing information that FMTA is now largely funding OCAP. Mayor Miller is said to despise OCAP but strongly supports FMTA. What gives here?

The address for this fund is the post office box for Toronto community mobilization network whose spokesperson is Sharmeen Khan, the FMTA book keeper. The people Dan MacIntyre silenced on this forum were asking how they tell the difference between the wrongly charged and those really guilty of vandalism.

This was posted as a public service. People can donate or not. This is not a forum for debating the protest itself.

One response indicated that people should have a fund for the businesses that were damaged. If such a fund is started, I would be pleased to post that as well.

And with that, I am locking the thread
